At Home.—Prof. FOWLER, Practical Physiologist, is now at his private rooms, No. 308 Broadway, where he will wait on those who may wish for his services. The practical uses of Physiology are: To teach how to bring all parts of the system into proper condition; to teach how to make the body fit for its functions and uses of each separate organ. To enable us to govern each faculty and propensity. By combining these it enables us to "know ourselves" and to account for each motive, strength, and weakness. It enables us to indicate with great exactness the precise occupation, or "calling" in life, in which each person may best succeed.

FOWLER & WELLS, Practical Physiologists, No. 308 Broadway, New-York, have full written description when you call. It will serve your highest interests, as a practical guide through life.
